THE HOME CIRCLE AND ITS INTERESTS.

Column Dedicated to Tired Mothers as They Join The Home Circle at Evening Tide.

The Mothers in Sickness.

We think the most pathetic passage in the bible is the description of the lad who went out to the harvest field of Shunem and got sunstruck—throwing out, "Oh, my head, my head!" and they said, "Carry him to his mother." And then the record is "He sat on her knees till noon and then died." It is an awful thing to be ill away from home in a strange hotel, once in a while men coming to look at you hold their hands over their mouth for fear that they will catch the contagion. How roughly they turn you in bed! How loudly they talk! How you long for the ministries of home! We know one such who went away from one of the brightest of homes for several weeks business absence at the West. A telegram came at midnight that he was on his death bed, far away from home. By express train the wife and daughter went westward, but they were too late. He feared not to die, but he was in agony to live until his family got there. He tried to bribe the doctor to make him have a little while longer. He said, "I am willing to die but not alone." But the pulse fluttered, the eyes closed and the heart stopped. The express train met in the midnight—wife and daughters going westward, lifeless remains of husband and father coming eastward. Oh, it was a sad, pitiful, overwhelming spectacle. When we are sick, we want to be sick at home. When the time comes for us to die, we want to die at home. The room must be humble, and the faces that look into ours may be very plain, but who cares for that? Loving hands to bathe the temple. Loving voices to speak good cheer. Loving lips to read the comforting promises of Jesus.

MUTUAL KINDNESS.

Kindness, as well as politeness, may be rightfully named as the lubricators of society. As impoliteness, either in old or young persons, male or female, is sometimes painful and always unpleasant; so we may say of unkindness, that it is a sore spot, a friction, a dreaded fault, to ever be avoided. Kindness allays irritation, soothes trouble, helps the needy, encourages the dull and discouraged, exercises the home, unites the church and reconciles society. A kind word, in like apple of gold in pictures of silver. Many a hot temper has been cooled down by kind words. Many a threatened quarrel and fight has been settled in peace by kindness. Many a divided and distracted church, or organization has quieted down and reunited by kind counsel and kind acts. Many an ugly faction has died a natural death by the kindly ministrations of kindness. Many a wretched and distracted home has been brought to conditions of peace and joy by the mellowing of influences of kind words and deeds. Hearts without number, hardened and aching from ill-treatment have been relieved and blessed by kindness. Other hearts poisoned by jealousy and selfishness, passion and pride have been sweetened and purified by the cultivation of kindly feeling and thoughts. Kindness, to be thorough and effective, must be reciprocal as well as receptive. Whoever would that all others

Should be kind to them, must themselves be kind to all others; on the principal that he that would have friends must show himself friendly.

Kindness may be misplaced sometimes; but that is the exception, and not the rule. They who cultivate and practice kindness feel a wonderful better than those who indulge in bitterness and ill temper.

Patients should remember that every distressing, blood-curdling story told to a young child, every superstitious fear instilled into his young life, the mental attitude they bear towards him, the whole treatment they accord him, are making photographic records in his nature which will be reproduced with scientific exactness in his future life.

Do you treat your child with as much respect as you treat friends? Example is stronger than precept, and if you treat him with respect he will respect himself. Do you provide amusements for your children at home? If not they will seek them elsewhere. Provide them with good literature, but be careful not to place within their reach the life history of an outlaw. Help your children with their names and their studies; be kind yet firm, and though your home has been a rude log cabin the children will not stray from the place where they dwell.

Home is not merely four square walls. Though hung with pictures nicely gilded. Home is where affection calls, Piled with the shrines the heart has builded.

A true husband will receive his wife into the most confident partnership. Woman is neither superior nor inferior to man. She is only different. A man may have a professional secret from his wife but never a personal secret. It is well to confide in wives business matters. Woman has an instinct at times superior to man's reason.

Suffered Twenty-One Years-- Finally Found Relief

Having suffered for twenty-one years with a pain in my side, I finally have found relief in Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. Injections of morphine were my only relief for short periods of time. I became so sick that I had to undergo a surgical operation in New Orleans, which benefited me for two years. When the same pain came back one day I was so sick that I gave up hope of living. A friend advised me to try your Swamp-Root and I at once commenced using it. The first bottle did me so much good that I purchased two more bottles. I am now on my second bottle and am feeling like a new man. I passed a gravel stone as large as a big red bean and several small ones. I have not had the least feeling of pain since taking your Swamp-Root and I feel it my duty to recommend this great medicine to all suffering humanity. Gratefully yours,
MRS. JOSEPH CONSTANCE,
Rapid, La.

Personally appeared before me, this 15th day of July, 1911, Mrs. Joseph Constance, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

GEMS FROM JIM ALLEN.

Mr. Matt Hall, of Louisville, has been making speeches for the Progressive party. That's the tail-end in Kentucky.

Speaking of names, what's the matter with Stokely Lacy, who hanged himself in the Princeton, Ky., jail?

When a fly tries to warm his cold feet on a rusty nail, he thinks he has struck a soft thing.

In the light of recent butcher shop disclosures at Louisville there were more truth than poetry in the western cowboy's cry of "Hot dog" at the State Fair and races.

Must be considerable truth in President Woodrow Wilson, in his address before the Y. M. C. A. at Pittsburgh, he advised the boys "not to follow men who stand still."

The Department of Agriculture declares the yield per colony of bees this year is only 8 pounds. In 1910 it was 20 pounds. The Republicans will attribute this falling off to the Democratic law tariff.

All of the lawyers of Glasgow, Ky., have entered into an agreement not to defend bootleggers. That's an example that might be followed with profit and credit to the lawyers in some other "dry" towns.

The Louisville Times thinks the "Now I lay me" prayer for children in that city should be revised as follows: "Now I lay me down to eat, my platter of mysterious meat. And when I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep. But if I bark, whine, growl, or howl, I know I've had some canine, feline, equine steak."

ADULT ILLITERACY IN STATE OF KENTUCKY.

(By Supt. Barksdale Hamlett)
Adult illiteracy is the greatest single handicap under which Kentucky is staggering today. It keeps blind the individual, it hinders public and private education; it retards the economic development of the State, and it goes far toward furnishing a debauched electorate.

IT BLINDS THE INDIVIDUAL.—Development and progress come to people and States largely through contact. The illiterate is cut off from this contact. He is limited in his life to the now and the here. His associates are as a rule those of his own class. From them he cannot learn; the blind cannot lead the blind. Hemmed in as to his intellectual life the illiterate goes to form a class of people, narrow, suspicious and nonprogressive.

IT HINDERS EDUCATION.—The upward movement of any people is in direct ratio to popular education. Illiteracy is an "old man of the sea" upon the back of education. Like bestiality, it breeds illiteracy. Blind to the advantages of education, the illiterate parent often is entirely indifferent and sometimes actually opposed to education. "I never had any learn, and I have lived" is a common excuse among illiterate parents. The children of such people form the problem of the trustee officer. No greater thing can be done for the schools of this State, than to stamp out once for all this evil of adult illiteracy.

IT RETARDS ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT.—As a rule, the illiterate is poor. Of course there are exceptions to this rule, but such exceptions only emphasize the rule. A great effort is now being made to improve the agricultural conditions in this State. Adult illiteracy stands in the way. No farm journal, no bulletin, no message except by word of mouth can reach this unfortunate class. Adult illiteracy bars the way of agricultural progress, and to eliminate it will fertilize every hill of corn and every field of wheat in the State. Every dollar spent in this righteous cause is like the water that rises from the sea to fall again on the land, bringing beauty and abundance to its trail.

IT DEBAUCHES THE ELECTORATE.—The very hope of our free institutions lies in the virtue and intelligence of the electorate. Ignorant and venal voters are a standing menace to free institutions. Ignorance has ever been the greatest foe to popular institutions. If Kentucky politics are ever to be improved, the tens of thousands of voters who cannot read the ballot must be taught to read.

EFFORTS TO ELIMINATE ILLITERACY.—An heroic effort is now being made to drive out of our great State the curse of illiteracy. Men and women who love humanity should help this cause along. It is a patriotic movement. It is altruism of a practical kind. It is good business. It is statesmanship. Let everyone who can lend a helping hand. Let critics keep silent while this battle with Kentucky's greatest foe is being fought and won.
